What is the Talent Outlook?

Leveraging audience insights gathered by Devex's in-house surveys team, the Talent Outlook is an informative and actionable report combining data from a quantitative online survey with both recruiters and professionals, which paints a complete picture of the current recruitment landscape in global development with a focus on skills. The report aims to enable organizations and the workforce to stay ahead of the curve in a rapidly changing industry so that they can continue to do good around the world.

Promote your organization to the global development community

Advertising in Devex's Talent Outlook is a great way to positively associate your brand with insightful research that will inform recruitment, training and upskilling strategies across the industry. Partners are co-branded alongside Devex, allowing you to promote your organization to professionals at various stages of their careers as well as to HR and recruitment leaders from key organizations in the sector. By placing ads in the report, you can attract your target audience in an engaging and compelling way, broadening the reach of your organization.

We will launch the Talent Outlook at the DC Career Forum - the 12th edition of one of the most popular recruitment events within the development community. The event brings together over 600 pre-screened and qualified global development professionals with mid- to senior-level career experience and 60 international NGOs, development companies and agencies.

The Talent Outlook will also be launched online to our network of over 1 million development professionals and global development executives, recruiters and HR managers from donor organizations, implementers, NGOs, institutions and private sector groups.
